

OTs Looking to Learn, Be Challenged, and Make a Difference

Assuring that our children continue to flourish despite the profound challenges that many must overcome requires dedicated and compassionate Occupational Therapists who are continually educated in the latest and most effective modalities.

We must meet the dramatic rises in pediatric special needs diagnoses with methodologies that discover the root causes and provide treatments that help the individual improve functioning, align and re-align development, reverse damage and heal.

We're interested in therapists—new grads are welcome—who are driven to serve and are just as driven to continually learn.

Therapists who appreciate the great challenges before us:

- How do we meet the dramatic increase of children with special needs?
- How do we continue to educate ourselves to be there and able to provide the treatments that improve functioning, align and re-align development, reverse damage, and help heal.

Therapists who want and appreciate an environment that:

- Provides an ever expanding post graduation learning curriculum.
- Provides 1 hour per day to collaborate with colleagues and/or in-service (our "1 o'clock" meeting).
- Presents some of the most challenging pediatric special needs cases in the area.
- Innovates.

That's the opportunity for therapists with a thirst to continue learning and a desire to be among the best and the compassion to help children with special needs have a better life and who care, really care.

A final thought:

Interviewing at many practices seems one-sided: a hiring person asking all the questions about you. At Creative, the conversation is two sided. We want you to know all about us to help you make a well informed career decision.

If you're a person who:

wants to be part of a great team...

likes to learn and try new things...

wants to be part of a practice that is passionately client focused...

then Creative may be the place for you.
